Chapter 1 by Pencil

I dropped a pen

Chapter 2 by Pencil

A heavy pen plummeted to the floor

Chapter 3 by Harlander

The pen sliced through the air like a supersonic jet. The rush of wind as it fell blew over trees and knocked passers-by from their feet. It slammed into the floor with staggering force, shattering the tiles and sending shards into the air.

Chapter 4 by Hop

The pen sliced through the air , creating a fiery field around it.

Similar to that of an unfortunate asteroid

Passer's-by wept of their feet while they fled

When the pen made impact it blew a crater in the floor, covered the city

Shards and debris went in

Turned day into night

Chapter 5 by The Author

All this played out before the eyes of a little toddler whose world had changed right in front of his eyes.

The pen had been dropped by the gods who had been in a petty fight that had escalated into a complete and bloody war.

The pen that had been dropped was from the god of writing himself Joakim who at the time was busy trying to protect the mortal world alongside his fabled story warriors.

Chapter 6 by Red

Because of the incident, all characters that he has written came to life.

They started drawing their swords and guns, pointing to every human they see.

No human to spare.

The sharpness of their swords allowed them to slice their victims into halves. Brains, bloods, organs and whatnot dripped, staining cements and every living and non-living things.

Blood started flooding throughout the planet.

Instead of blue and green, planet Earth was nothing but blood red.

Chapter 7 by Rosetta

I was on an airplane, then I opened my window, the fresh air blowing on my face, the wind rolling my hair. I was drawing on myself, imagining the future tattoo I would get on my hand in the USA, my hand slipped and my pen plummeted to the ground, I was devastated, the only pen I ever had, gone, forever.

Chapter 8 by Rosetta

My pen plummeted to the ground.

So I picked up a pencil.
